JACOB TURPIN was born in Eastern Maryland March 14, 1785. His father's name was William Turpin, and his mother's name was Nancy Hanly. William Turpin and Nancy Hanly were married in Maryland in 1783—the exact date is not now known.

According to a tradition which has come down to the later generations of the Turpin family, Jacob Turpin's grandfather was a Revolutionary soldier and lived to be more than 100 years old.

As evidence tending to show that in all probability this tradition is founded on facts, I quote from a letter written by Dr. W. H. Hyten of Ladoga, Indiana, to Wallace Turpin of Indianapolis, in 1906. Dr. Hyten is a grandson of a sister of Jacob Turpin's and was 84 years old when he wrote the letter.

Dr. Hyten said: "On the 10th day of October, 1833. I saw at my father's house, James Turpin and his wife, Sarah Turpin, each of them being more than 100 years old." Dr. Hyten's father was living in Montgomery county Kentucky, at the time the Doctor saw James and Sarah Turpin at his father's house. The Doctor remembers the date because it was the day his father started to move from Kentucky to Indiana.

When the Doctor wrote the above letter he was of the opinion that James and Sarah Turpin were the parents of Jacob Turpin and his brothers and sisters; but, since seeing a synopsis of Jacob Turpin's family record, copied from Jacob Turpin's Family Bible, he admits that he was mistaken and now believes that they were the grandparents of Jacob Turpin and his brothers and sisters. I am of the opinion the Doctor is correct in his last conclusion, and I doubt not that further investigation will show that James Turpin was a Revolutionary soldier.

According to tradition the Turpins are of English descent and came to America before the Revolutionary war.

As to when or where Nancy Hanly was born, or as to her nationality, we have no positive knowledge.

In 1786, when Jacob Turpin was about one year old, his parents moved with him to Kentucky and settled among hostile Indians and for a time, with other early settlers, lived in block-houses, the better to protect themselves against the attacks of Indians. Jacob Turpin was the oldest child in the Turpin family, but after they moved to Kentucky two more sons and two daughters were born to the family. The names of the two sons were Abraham and Isaac, and the names of the two daughters were Sarah and Nancy. Abraham and Isaac both married and raised families in Kentucky, and in about the year 1850 Abraham and his family moved to Putnam county, Indiana, and some of Abraham Turpin's descendants are now living in that county. Isaac Turpin remained in Kentucky, and some of his descendants are still living in that state, but their postoffice addresses are unknown to the writer hereof.

Sarah Turpin married a man by the name of Henry Darnell, and Nancy Turpin married a man by the name of Danied Darnell. These Darnells were cousins. Henry Darnell moved from Kentucky to Hendricks county, Indiana, in about the year 1833, and in about the same year Daniel Darnell moved from Kentucky to Putnam county, Indiana. These Darnells reared large families and many of their descendants are living in Hendricks, Putnam, Park, Montgomery, Boone and other counties in this state. .

We have no account of Jacob Turpin from the time he was an infant until the time of his marriage. He married a lady by the name of Martha Taylor. They were married in Bourbon county, Kentucky in 1804. The exact date is not now known. Martha Taylor was born in Kentucky, May 18, 1786. Her parents were of Scotch descent.

They raised a large family of sons and daughters, many of whose descendants no doubt are still living, but their addresses are unknown to the Turpin branch of the family.

From the date of their marriage until the year 1820 Jacob and Martha Turpin resided in Bourbon county, Kentucky. But in 1820 they moved to Scott county, Kentucky, and purchased a farm, and resided on said farm until the summer of 1827, when they sold their farm and moved to Indiana. They lived in Indianapolis during the winter of 1827. At that time Indianapolis contained a population of about 700 souls. Then there was not a graded street, or sidewalk in the town. The streets were full of stumps and mudholes. Nearly all the houses in the town were log houses covered with clapboards. In the spring of 1828 Jacob Turpin and family rented and moved onto a farm on Eagle Creek some seven or eight miles north-west of Indianapolis, and remained on said farm until the spring of 1829, when they moved to a tract of land in the east edge of Hendricks Co. immediately west of where the little town of Clermont is now located, which tract they had previously purchased. The only improvements on this tract of land, when they moved to it, were a little log cabin and a little log stable, and some five or six acres partly cleared and fenced.

In order that the present and future generations may know something of the hardships and privations that the Jacob Turpin family, and other families who settled in that part of the country at that time had to endure for the next ten or fifteen years, a few words upon that subject will probably not be considered out of place at this time. The country at the time these families settled there was an unbroken forest, filled with wild beasts of various kinds. There were but few houses west of Eagle Creek in either Marion or Hendricks county, and these houses were built of round logs and generally contained but one room. The roofs of these houses were made of clapboards and weighted down with logs, or heavy poles. These houses had stick-and-clay chimneys and puncheon floors, and the spaces between the logs were chinked with split, or round sticks and daubed with clay. The doors were made of five poles and a bunch of clapboards. Two of the poles were about four inches in diameter and about six feet in length, and three of the poles were about two inches in diameter and three feet in length, and when framed together they had the appearance of a step ladder six feet long and three feet wide. The clapboards were six feet in length and placed horizontally with the long poles and were then woven with the frame so as to let the middle of said boards rest on the opposite side of the pole from the boards at the end poles. These doors were hung on wooden hinges and they were fastened by wooden latches. Small auger holes were bored through the door, about two inches above the latch and a buckskin string was passed through the auger hole and fastened from the latch to the outside of the door so that persons wishing to enter from the outside could do so by pulling the latch string. There were no glass windows in these houses, and no nails nor iron of any kind in the construction of these houses.

There were no wagon roads nor bridges of any kind in the country at that time. The Indianapolis and Crawfordsville road was cleared of timber and brush after that date. Farmers used sleds instead of wagons, and many of them had oxen instead of horses, for farm work.

People traveled on horsback, or on foot. Every-body worked. The men and boys deadened the forests, cleared the ground and raised the crops. They raised corn, wheat, oats, flax etc. They broke the ground with wooden mouldboard plows, furrowed out the corn ground with shovel plows, dropped the corn by hand and covered it with hoes. They sowed oats, wheat, and flax seed by hand, broadcast, and harrowed the grain in with a brush, or a bunch of brush. They cut their wheat and oats crops with reap-hooks, or hand cradles and threshed their crops with flails, or tramped them out on the ground with horses. They separated the grain from the chaff by two men taking a sheet and swinging it back and forth so as to blow the chaff from the grain as a third man poured it from a shovel or measure, held five or six feet high. They pulled the flax up by the root and spread it on the ground to rot the woody part of the stalk, and when it was sufficiently rotted they broke it with flax-breaks and with swingling knives and hackles they separated the woody part from the fiber, leaving the fiber ready to be spun into thread and woven into cloth. They also raised sheep and sheared them and washed the wool. The women and girls picked the wool and carded it into rolls with hand cards and spun it into thread and wove it into cloth.

They also spun the fiber of the flax into thread and wove it into cloth. Cloth made of flax was called "linen." Cloth made of wool was called "jeans." Cloth made with flax or cotton chain with wool filling, was called "linsey." The women cut and made the wearing apparel for all the family. Men and boys wore suits in summer time made of linen and in winter time, made of jeans. Women and girls generally wore suits made of linsey. Nearly every family owned two spinning wheels and one loom. They had a small wheel for spinning flax and a large wheel for spinning wool, and a loom for weaving linen, linsey and jeans.

Farmers at that time raised and manufactured nearly every thing they and their families ate and wore.

The first railroad completed to Indianapolis was in 1847, and previous to that date farmers had to drive their cattle, hogs and sheep to Cincinnati, Lawrenceburgh, or Madison, on the Ohio river, a distance of 120 miles or more, to find a market for their stock. Cattle and hogs then sold at these markets for about $1.50 per hundred pounds. A steer that weighed one thousand pounds would bring about fifteen dollars, and a hog that weighed two hundred pounds, brought about three dollars. Sheep sold correspondingly low. Farmers who had wheat, flax seed, bacon, or any other kinds of country produce to sell had to haul these things in wagons to some one of the above mentioned markets to find sale for them.

Wages at that time were very low. Stout, able-bodied men worked for about 25 cents a day. Some articles farmers had to have, sold very high. An ordinary chopping ax sold at from $2.00 to $3.00, and a cross-cut saw, and a very poor one at that, sold for $8.00 to $10.00; and nearly every thing else made of iron or steel sold correspondingly high. Calico sold at 25 cents a yard. Coffee and tea sold so very high that but few people could afford such luxuries. At that time Uucle Sam charged 25 cents for sending a letter, even a short distance, in the U. S. Mail. To send a small letter a short distance through the U. S. Mail, or, to buy one yard of calico, cost the purchaser a day's wages of an able-bodied man.

It was many years after the Jacob Turpin family settled on their tract of land in Hendricks county before they had the satisfaction of seeing broad and fertile fields take the place of the primeval forest, or of enjoying any of the benefits of labor-saving machinery. But they lived hapily and grew up with the country, and made for themselves a nice, comfortable home.

Jacob Turpin was a small man, standing about five feet, six inches in height, and weighing about one hundred forty pounds. He had a high forehead, dark hair and brown eyes. He was a man of limited education, but read a great deal. He was a splendid conversationalist and kept well posted on the current events of his day, and was able to discuss the religious or political questions at issue, with the best informed men of his part of the country. Politically he was a whig. Religiously he was very leberal—he never joined any church.

Martha Turpin was a woman a little above medium size. She had dark hair and blue eyes. She had but little education, but had excellent judgment, her opinions nearly always being correct. She was held by her children and her neighbors as a safe counselor and advisor. In the culinary art she was par-excellence. She was a member of the Baptist church.

Jacob and Martha Turpin mere honest, kind hearted people, and greatly beloved, not only by their children and grand-children, but by all who knew them.

They reared a family of twelve children, six sons and six daughters, all of whom lived to be grown. The names of the sons were: Robison, William Hanly, Harrison Green, Henry Warren, Johnson Egideon and John Thompson, and the names of the daughters were: Lucinda, Nancy, Elizabeth, Malinda and Zarelda. All of these children were born in Kentucky except John Thompson, who was born in Indiana. A particular account of each of these children will be given later on.

Jacob Turpin died on his farm in Hendricks county, Indiana, on January 19, 1849, from the results of a fall, aged 64 years, and was buried in the Isaac Smith Cemetery, in Henericks county, two miles west of the town of Clermont. Martha Turpin died of a complication of diseases incident to old age, at the home of her daughter, Zarelda Menefee, near Brownsburg, in Hendricks county, October 11, 1865, aged 79 years, and was buried by the side of her deceased husband in the Isaac Smith Cemetery. A monument at the head of their graves marks the last resting place of Jacob and Martha Turpin.

Martha Turpin,
Born 1785, died 1865. Her husband,
Jacob Turpin,
born 1785, died 1849, never had a picture taken.

Second Generation.

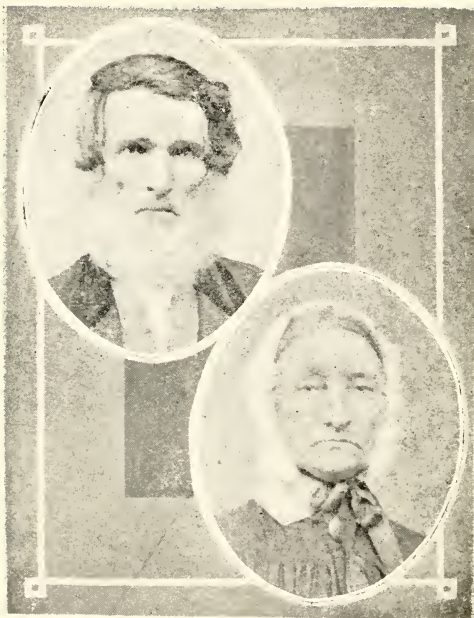

ROBISON TURPIN, son of Jacob and Martha Turpin, was born in Bourbon county, Kentucky, April 7, 1805, and in 1820 moved with his parents to Scott County in that state. He was married January 22, 1827, to a lady by the name of Rachel Powell, who was born in Scott county, Kentucky, December 27, 1807. From the time of his marriage until he moved to Indiana, in 1834, he followed farming and teaming. He owned and cultivated a small farm in Scott county, and he also fitted himself out with a good four-horse team, and when not engaged in farming was engaged in buying and hauling grain and country produce to Georgetown, Lexington and other markets, and in hauling drygoods, groceries etc. back to merchants in the country and small towns.

In 1834 he sold his farm in Scott county, Kentucky, and in October of that year moved to Indiana where he bought and moved onto a tract of land of 205 acres in the east edge of Hendricks county, about two miles west of where the town of Clermont is now situated. Most of his land was very low, and only the most elevated spots could be cultivated. A frost and freeze on the night of June 5, 1843, killed his fruit crop and his wheat crop and very materially injured his corn crop and his garden crops. He then became very much dissatisfied with the country and concluded to sell out and move back to Kentucky. He offered his land at $5 per acre, but could find no buyer at that price. A few years later, after he had more of his land cleared, and the swampy parts ditched, he discovered that he had very rich, productive land, and was then glad that he had not found a buyer for it at $5 per acre. He became satisfied with the country and continued to prosper financially to the end of his life. He made large advancements to his children, as they became of age, and when he died he left to each of them estates which far exceeded the original advancements.

Robison Turpin was a man of good judgment and possessed better business and educational qualifications than the average farmer of his day and location.

There were born to Robison and Rachel Turpin ten children, namely: Elizabeth, John W. G., Anderson, Henry, Harvey, Harrison, Doctor, Martha, Jacob and one who died in infancy, unnamed.

Robison Turpin and wife.

Rachel Turpin died July 31, 1880, and Robison Turpin died August 31, 1880, and they were buried in the Salem Cemetery two miles south of Clermont, side by side.

Third Generation.

ELIZABETH TURPIN, daughter of Robison and Rachel Turpin, was born in Scott county, Kentucky, October 4, 1828, and came with her parents to Hendricks county, Indiana, in October, 1834.

She was married in October, 1846, to John R. Craig who was born in Tennessee in 1829, and who died in Hendricks county, Indiana, in March, 1854.

There were born to Elizabeth and John R. Craig four children, namely: Charles, and David, and two who died in infancy un-named.

Elizabeth Craig was married Dec. 22, '61, to Samuel Williams, of Danville, Ind., who was born Feb. 22, 1831, in Clark county, Kentucky. There was born to Elizabeth and Samuel Williams one child, named Mary Jane. Elizabeth Williams died in Danville, Indiana, July 23, 1901, and was buried in the Danville Cemetery.

On August 18, 1862, he was mustered into the United States service as a recruit in Company I, 7th Regiment, Indiana Volunteer Infantry. . He was in the battle of the Wilderness on May 5, 1864, and was wounded in the first charge and was sent to Armory Square Hospital in Washington D. C. After remaining there a short time he was granted a thirty days furlough and returned to the home of his father. At the end of the thirty days he returned to Washington City and reported for duty, and was assigned to duty in a battalion consisting of about 400 men stationed at Fort Ethan Allen, near Washington City. He was on duty either at that Fort, or Fort McAllister, also near Washington City, until about the middle of October of that year, when the battalion was disbanded and the soldiers sent to their respective regiments. The 7th Regiment, Indiana Infantry, having served its full time and the soldiers having been discharged, Henry Turpin was assigned to duty in the 20th Regiment, Indiana Infantry. This Regiment was stationed near Petersburg, Virginia, during the winter of 1864-5. In the spring of 1865 the Regiment followed General Lee's army to Appomattox. After Lee's surrender the 20th Regiment was sent back to Washington City and from there to Indianapolis, where, on the 31st day of May, 1865, the soldiers of the Regiment were discharged from the U. S. service.

After the war was over, Henry Turpin again engaged in farming and followed that occupation during the remainder of his life.

He was married Nov. 28, 1865, to Amelia Ellen Brock, who was born in Scott county, Kentucky, January 7, 1845.

Harvey Turpin, son of Robison and Rachel Turpin, was born in Hendricks county, Indiana, February 28, 1837. He was reared on a farm and has followed farming all his life, except while serving his country as a soldier in the war of the rebellion. He served as a private in Co. F., 5th Regiment, Indiana Cavalry. He and his brother, Doctor Turpin, enlisted at Indianapolis, Aug. 18, 1862. His company was ordered to report to Colonel Gray at Madison, Indiana, but they found Colonel Gray's command at Carrollton, Kentucky. Company F. was on scout duty in that part of Kentucky until about Christmas when it was transferred to Louisville, thence to Munfordville, where it remained until March, 1863, when it was joined by all the other companies of the Regiment. The Regiment was then sent to Glassgow where it remained until in June, when it was ordered north to assist in checking Morgan's raid through Indiana and Ohio.

The Regiment went up the Ohio river as far as Portsmouth and took part in the fight at Buffington Bar where Morgan surrendered.

The Regiment returned to Louisville and from there went south to take part in the campaign of Tennessee. During the siege of Knoxville by Longstreet the 5th Cavalry did some heavy skirmishing and was in several pretty hotly contested battles..

The Regiment returned to Kentucky in the spring of 1864 but about the first of May of that year was sent south to take part in the Georgia campaign. At the siege of Atlanta the greater portion of the 5th Regiment was captured and the prisoners were sent to Andersonville where they were confined for about ten weeks. They were then sent to Florence, South Carolina, where they were kept about eight weeks and then sent to Charleston where they were paroled and sent home.

On account of disability Harvey Turpin was discharged from the service in April, 1865.

On September 5, 1865, Harvey Turpin was married to Permelia F. Smith, who was born in Boone county, Indiana, May 28, 1840, and who died February 17, 1908.

There were born to Harvey and Permelia Turpin six children, namely Rachel F., Mary E., Viola M., Flora E., Harry E. and Homer E.

Harvey Turpin owns and occupies a large and well improved farm near Fayette, Boone county, Indiana.

Third Generation.

Doctor Turpin, son of Robison and Rachel Turpin, was born in Hendricks county, Indiana, September 10, 1841. He lived on the farm with his parents until August, 1862 when he enlisted as a soldier in the war of the Rebellion. He served as a private in Co. F, 5th Regiment, Indiana Cavalry. His brother Harvey was also a member of said company. Their first experience was serving as scouts in Carroll, Trimble, Henry and other counties in Northern Kentucky. In June 1863, the 5th Regiment was transferred by boat, from Louisville, Kentucky, to Portsmouth, Ohio, to assist in checking Morgan's raid through Indiana and Ohio.. The 5th Regiment took part in the fight at Buffington Island where a considerable number of Morgan's men were killed and about thirteen hundred of them were taken prisoners. During this fight Doctor Turpin was taken prisoner but soon after made his escape from the enemy.

After the Morgan raid was ended the 5th Regiment was transferred back to Louisville and from there to Knoxville, Tennessee, where it took part in many skirmishes and several hard fought battles.

During the winter of 1863-4 the Regiment took part in the battles of Blountsville, Wilke's Ford, Been Station, Dandridge, Henderson Mills and several other places.

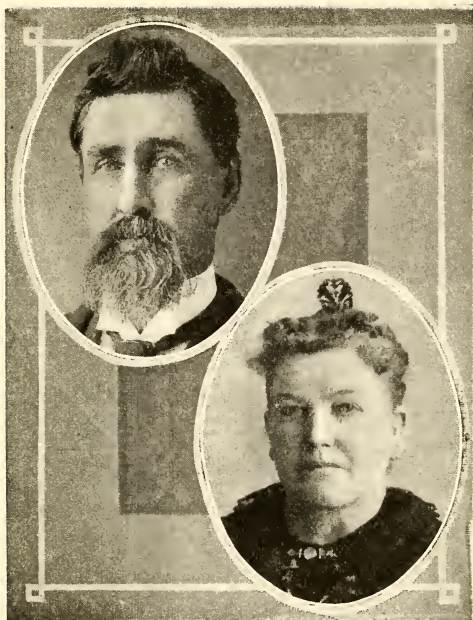

In the spring of 1864 the Regiment returned to northern Kentucky and were on duty there a short time, when it was ordered to Georgia. At Laural Hill, Georgia, the Regiment joined General Steadman's forces and marched to Atlanta, Georgia and took part in nearly all the battles fought between Dalton and Atlanta, and also took part in the siege of Atlanta. In July, 1864, near Macon, Georgia, the Regiment was surrounded by a superior force and captured, and was taken to Andersonville prison, where it was kept about two and one-half months, and was then transferred to Florence, South Carolina, where it was confined about two months, when it was sent to Charleston, South Carolina, where it was held until February, 1865, when the soldiers were paroled and sent home on furlough. Doctor Turpin returned to his home in Hendricks county, Indiana and after remaining there two months, reported for duty at Camp Chace, Ohio, and in August of that year was mustered out of the service.

After being mustered out of the service Doctor Turpin made his home with his parents in Hendricks county, Indiana, until February, 1867 when he located in Sangamon county, Illinois.

In January, 1869, Doctor Turpin was married to Mary E. Ayers, who was born in Owen county, Kentucky, December 23, 1842.

There have been born to Doctor and Mary E. Turpin four children, namely: Ida May, Clara E., W. Clarence and Alice Rose.

Doctor Turpin owns a farm of 200 acres in Macon county, Illinois, but has retired from active farm work and is now living in the town of Oriana in that county.

Second Generation.

Lucinda Turpin Smith was married June 29, 1830, to John Lambert, who was born in Fayette county, Kentucky, March 1, 1804. They were married in Scott county, Kentucky, but moved to Marion county, Indiana, soon after their marriage. They purchased 80 acres of land in the west edge of said county, on a part of which 80 acre tract the town of Clermont now stands.

They resided on said land until the fall of 1836. when they sold it and bought land in Boone county, Indiana. They moved to their Boone county land in March, 1838, and continued to reside there during the remainder of their natural lives, which was only for a short time.

Lucinda Lambert died June 29, 1842 and John Lambert died July 14, 1842. They each died of typhoid fever and were buried in the New Mount Tabor Cemetery, at Fayette, Boone county, Indiana.

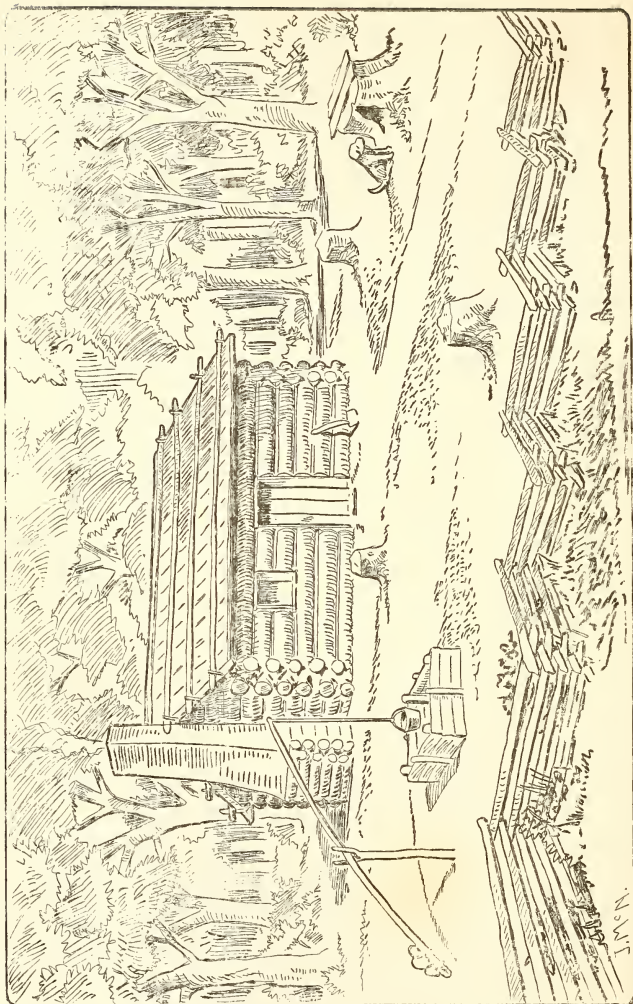

There were born to Lucinda and John Lambert four children, namely: Paschal T., Henry M., Lazena, and Nancy A.

No picture of Lucinda or John Lambert can be furnished for the reason that the art of taking pictures by the light of the sun through a camera or kodak was unknown in their part of the country while they were living.

As the first cabins erected in Indiana have all been torn down, or rotted down, and as the people of the present generation have never seen one of said cabins, and probably never saw a good picture of one of them, I have, by the assistance of my special artist, prepared a picture of a cabin that my father, John Lambert, erected, or caused to be erected, in 1832. This cabin was built on the south side of the Indianapolis and Crawfordsville State road at a point near where the center of Clermont now stands. It was a type of the better class of cabins erected in that locality at that date. I remember that cabin as far back as 1834, and I remembered it several years after that date; but like all other cabins erected at that date, it has disappeared, and those who occupied that cabin at that time, myself excepted, have long since departed this life. I alone am left to tell the story.

Third Generation.

Paschal T. Lambert, son of Lucinda and John Lambert, was born in Marion county, Indiana, May 24, 1831. After the death of his parents, which occurred in 1842, he lived with his Uucle Robison Turpin in Hendricks county, until October, 1845, after which time he lived with a man by the name of William Myers, in Decatur county, Indiana, until September, 1852. He went to Iowa in 1854 and remained in that state until 1876 when he returned to Decatur county Indiana.

He was married in Albia, Iowa, September 3, 1857, to Eliza H. Saunders, who was born in Decatur county, Indiana, September 27, 1833. He now lives in Greensburg, Indiana, and is the owner of a complete set of abstract books of said county, and has been constantly engaged in the abstract business for the past 30 years.

P. T. Lambert received the principal part of his education in the public schools of the neighborhood in which he lived. Public schools at that time consisted of one term of three months in each year. These schools were generally taught during the winter months, in log school houses, with open fire-places and seats made of split logs with wooden pins for legs and without any backs to the seats.

The principal branches taught were spelling, reading, writing and arithmetic.

These schools were subscription schools:—parents guardians etc. had to pay for each pupil sent. A great many parents, guardians etc. were unable to pay tuition fees and for that reason their children failed to receive an education.

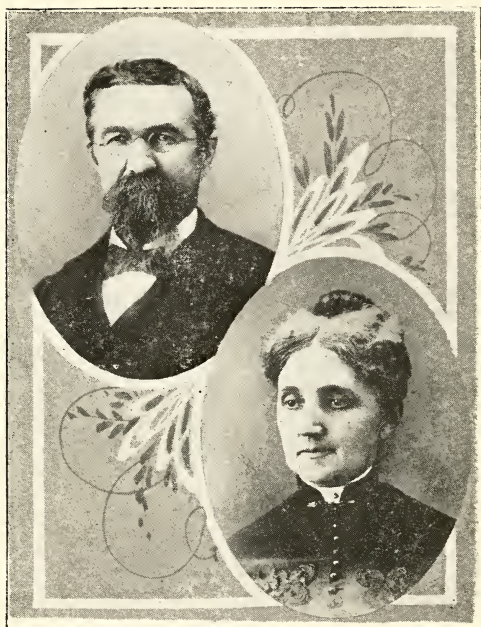

Some poetical genius who no doubt received his education in these public schools, some fifty years after that date wrote some verses descriptive of said schools, one verse of which follows:—

How wondrous are the changes
 Since fifty years ago,
 When girls wore woolen dresses,
 And boys wore pants of tow:
 And shoes were made of cow-hide,
 And socks of home-spun wool;
 And children did a half-day's work
 Before they went to school.

Another generation is on the stage of action now, and opportunities for acquiring an education greatly exceed the limited opportunities afforded fifty or sixty years ago. Now every child between six and fourteen years of age is required by law to attend some public or private school at least three months in each year. The expense of instructing these children is paid for out of a public fund; and if parents and guardians are not able to furnish books and clothing for their children, the same will be paid for out of a public fund.

To day children have better opportunities for acquiring an education and are generally better educated than children were fifty or sixty years ago.

There have been born to Paschal T. and Eliza H. Lambert six children, namely: Sue, John, Lazena, Clara, Mary and Paschal T. jr.

P. T. Lambert and wife.

FOURTH GENERATION:—

Sue Lambert, daughter of Paschal T. and Eliza H. Lambert, was born in Albia, Iowa, July 10, 1858. For a number of years she taught in the public schools of Decatur county and in the City of Greensburg, but for the past ten or twelve years has been engaged with her father in the abstract of title business.

She has been so constantly occupied in her vocations in life that she has neglected to get married.

John Lambert, son of Paschal T. and Eliza H. Lambert, was born in Albia, Iowa, December 18, 1860 and died of flux in that city August 22, 1862 and was buried in Oakview cemetery, at Albia.

Lazena Lambert, daughter of Paschal T. and Eliza H. Lambert, was born in Albia, Iowa, September 28, 1863. She was married in Decatur county, Indiana, August 12, 1889, to Edward M. White who was born in Decatur county, Indiana, April 7, 1860. Mr. White is a Lawyer and during President Harrison's administration held a position as law clerk in the Interior Department at Washington D. C., after which time until about four years ago he practiced law in Muncie, Indiana. He is now First Assistant Attorney General of the State and lives in Indianapolis.

Nellie E. C. Graham, daughter of William Paschal and Annie E. Graham, was born in Woodward, Oklahoma, February 7, 1903.

FOURTH GENERATION:—

Lazena Graham, daughter of Lazena and Dr. Jas. P. Graham, was born in Clermont, Indiana, December 27, 1862. Her mother died while she was an infant and she was reared by her aunt, Mrs. James Clark, in Johnson county, Indiana. Since the death of Mrs. Clark, which occurred a few years ago, she and her cousin, Felix Clark, have purchased residence property in Thorntown, Indiana, and are occupying the same. For the past several years she has been an invalid, but she is now on the road to recovery.

Third Generation.

Nancy A. Lambert, daughter of Lucinda and John Lambert, was born in Boone county, Indiana, September —, 1840. After the death of her parents she lived with her Uncle, Robison Turpin, in Hendricks county, Indiana, until the time of her death, which occurred March 7, 1846. She was buried in the Isaac Smith Cemetery.

Second Generation.

Nancy Turpin, daughter of Jacob and Martha Turpin, was born in Bourbon County, Kentucky, April 15, 1809.

She was married in 1824 to John Smith who was born in Scott County, Kentucky, Dec. 19, 1803. and who died in that County in 1833.

There were born to Nancy and John Smith 3 children, namely: Squire, Lucinda and Moses, the last named child died in infancy. Nancy Smith and her 2 children, Squire and Lucinda, came to Ind. in 1834.

My father, John Lambert, went from his home in Indiana, to Scott Co. Ky. to help them move. They packed their clothing, beds and bedding and some dishes and other articles, in sacks and bed ticks and tied them on their horses and rode their horses through to Hendricks Co. Ind.

In 1836 Nancy Smith was again married; this time she married a man by the name of Arnold Call, a widower with 6 children. Arnold Call was born in Vermont, Jan. 15, 1791, and died in Hendricks Co. Ind. in 1857.

There were born to Nancy and Arnold Call 4 children, namely: Caroline, Cynthia, Esther and Alexander.

He was then 9 years old and rode the whole distance on a two-year-old colt, with its back padded with blankets, quilts etc. for a saddle and with stirrups made of ropes.

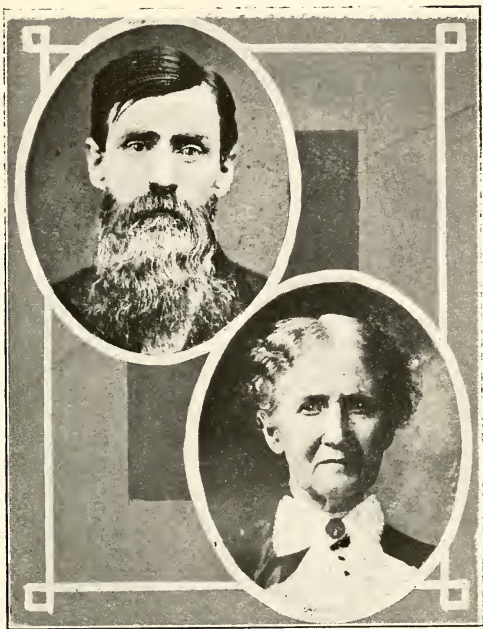

He was married Nov. 18, 1847, to Sarah Pittman who was born in Lexington, Ky. Dec. 20, 1832.

Squire Smith learned the Cooper's trade when a young man and followed that trade at Clermont, Ind. until after the close of the Civil war. Soon after the close of said war he went to Tipton Co. Ind. and engaged in the purchase of timber and in the management of a saw-mill. While so engaged he was thrown from a horse and sustained injuries from which it took years for him to recover. He lived in Indianapolis from the time of receiving his injuries until 1874 when he moved to Crawfordsville, Ind. and engaged in the drug business. He sold his interest in the drug business some 15 or 20 years ago. He never engaged in any line of buisness of his own after that date.

Squire Smith had planned to be present at the Turpin family reunion which was held at Riverside Park, Indianapolis, Ind. Aug. 28, 1910. He expected to have the pleasure of meeting a great many of his relatives and freinds and also of celebrating the anniversary of his 85 birth day on that accasion. He was the oldest one of the blood relatives then living and those who attended that meeting were anxious to see him with them. But instead of seeing him on that accasion they were informed by telegram that he was too ill to attand the meeting. Thereupon a resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of those present extending sympathy and their earnest desire that Squire Smith might soon recover from his affliction and be able to attend other reunions of the Turpin family. But nature decreed otherwise, for he died at his home in Crawfordsville, Ind. Aug. 31, 1910-just 3 days after the adoption of these resolutions. He was buried in Oak Hill Cemetery near that city.

There were born to Squire and Sarah Smith 3 children, namely: Charles Lee, Robert Calvin and Alice Rose.

STATEMENT :

Cynthia Lowe was a daughter of Nancy and Arnold Call, and a grand daughter of Jacob and Martha Turpin, and therefore she and her children and grand children should be fully and accurately reported in this genealogy. Learning that Cynthia Lowe had died in Kansas and that all her children were living in Kansas, I prepared some questions relative to the birth and death of Cynthia Lowe and the births, marriages and deaths of her children. I mailed my questions to Fremont Canary, with the request that he and his wife answer them. Mr. Canary replied at once, that they would not answer any of my questions. Thinking Mr. Canary had gotten a wrong idea of the object of my questions, I wrote him again, fully explaining the matter. To this letter I got no reply.

I have written Mr. Canary two or three letters since then' I have also written to Fletcher Lowe and Ora Lowe in regard to this matter but have received no reply to my letters. I have made dilligent inquiry of other relatives, in regard to Cynthia Lowe, and her children and from said relatives I have only been able to gather the facts above stated. When Cynthia Lowe's children and grandchildren wake up to the fact that they are "left out in the cold" in regard to this matter, they can blame somebody besides your humble servant for their being left out in the cold.

And a great many of the relatives will regret that Cynthia Lowe and her children and grandchildren are not fully and accurately shown up in this genealogy. And I think when Fremont Canary sees a copy of this book, he will regret that a full account of Cynthia Lowe and her children and grandchildren can not be found in the book.

CONCLUDING CHAPTER.

It was my intention when I commenced the history and genealogy of the Jacob Turpin branch of the Turpin family, to furnish a brief history, as well as a genealogy of the first and second generations of the family, and to furnish only a genealogy of all succeeding generations of the family. I have carried out, to the best of my ability, my purpose in all these matters, except as yet I have not furnished a history of the women of the second generation. I have set apart this chapter for that purpose.

The women of the second generation were six in number and their names were, Lucinda Lambert, Nancy Smith-Call, Elizabeth Smith, Malinda Smith, Mahala Eaton and Zarelda Menefee.

These women were each about five feet, five inches in height and when in the prime of life, each weighed about one hundred and twenty pounds. Lucinda, Nancy, Elizabeth and Zarelda, each had black hair and brown eyes. Malinda and Mahala, each had brown hair and blue eyes. And I have been told by persons who knew them when they were young ladies, that they were then decidedly pretty.

These women all married and had nice husbands and good homes of their own. They all raised children of their own, except Zarelda, and she raised several children for other people. These women were nice clean housekeepers and kept their children as clean and comfortably clad as circumstances would permit in their respective localities at that date. They could each sew and knit, spin and weave, cut and make the wearing apparel for all the members of their respective families.

They were considered by all who knew them, adepts in the culinary art. I think they inherited or acquired the art from their mother Martha Turpin, and I think they transmitted the art to their daughters and granddaughters, and so on down to the present generation, for they are all certainly extraordinary good cooks.

These women had but little education, but they had a big stock of mother wit. These were noble, brave pioneer women who labored and sacrificed and did a great deal towards building up the country.

This work is now done, but in some particulars imperfectly done. It was my intention, when I commenced the work, to give the name and date of birth of every child born to Jacob and Martha Turpin and to all their descendants, down to the present date, and also to give the name and date of marriage of every member of that family, who had married, and also to give the name and date of death of those who have died. But on account of some family record being lost and some families failing to furnish me the necessary information, some names and some dates are left out of this book.

I have written hundreds of letters and have spent a great deal of time and considerable money, in trying to get this record full and complete and therefore failing to have it complete is no fault of mine.

In compiling this work, I failed to discover that the Turpins had descended from royal blood. But I did discover that they had descended from the Aryan or white race, but as to what particular branch or subdivision of that race I am unable to state.

And I discovered that our ancestors, Jacob and Martha Turpin, were married in 1804 and that since then there have been born to that couple and their descendates, about eight hundred souls—about eight hundred living human beings. Certainly a very prolific family. And it is said that about every fortieth child born in the United States and in England is either an idiot or a degenerate. Among the eight hundred children born to this family I have found no idiots or degenerates.

And in every town, village and neighborhood may be found among the men, liars, drunkards, thieves etc., and among the women, tattlers, slanderers, kleptomaniacs etc., but among the hundreds of men and women in this family, who have arrived at the years of accountability, I have found no liars, drunkards, or thieves, among the men, nor tattlers, slanderers, or kleptomaniacs, among the women. And I have never heard of any member of this family beingsent to a jail, or a poorhouse, or a lunatic asylum.

The members of this family are not only moral and lawabiding, but they are honest and industrious, and make good livings for themselves and pay their honest debts. Can any other family in the State of Indiana, with an equal number of members, show as good a record as this family? I doubt it, and challenge a comparison.

In conclusion I will say, I am the oldest one of the blood relatives now living, and when I think of former homes and the scenes of former days, I am reminded of what the poet said:—

“When I remember all
 The friends, so linked together
 I’ve seen around me fall,
 Like leaves in winter weather,
 I feel like one
 Who treads alone
 Some banquet hall deserted,
 Whose lights are fled,
 Whose garlands dead,
 And all but him departed.”

I miss these friends and mourn their loss, but when I reflect that under an inexorable law of nature, all must die, I try to cease mourning for these departed friends, and take greater interest in the younger generations.

My hope and desire is, that I may not fail either physically or mentally, while living, to such extent that I will not take interest in, and enjoy the company of the younger generations, and that I may not fail either physically or mentally, to such an extent that the younger generations will not take interest in me, and enjoy my company, is the wish of your humble servant.
